'Science in Action' Show TV Pride of San Francisco

By TOM E. DANSON

SAN FRANCISCO. TV antennae are sprouting up faster here than the grass in the beautiful rolling hills. A mighty proud group of three TV stations present their program of education and public service. I thoroughly enjoyed talking with Dr. Robert C. Miller, director of the California Academy of Sciences here, and producer of the excellent series, "Science in Action," who said, "In this scientific age in which we are living it is only natural that the people, aware of the influence the various sciences exert upon their daily lives, are more eager for knowledge along these lines than they have been in any past era. Here, I believe, is another opportunity for television to perform a great public service in the field of education, for I consider it to be the ideal medium for the dissemination of scientific information."

The only such TV show in the west, "Science in Action" has been consistently voted tops with Tviewers here. It received the 1950 award for the best educational show and honorable mention in the "live" show category from the Bay Area Television Academy of Arts and Sciences for that year.

Other honors include "Outstanding Achievement Award" from the American Public Relations Association, and the special award of merit from the Second District of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers.

"For the first time," Dr. Miller said, "thousands upon thousands of people who otherwise could not obtain this knowledge, are gaining an education in the sciences heretofore beyond their reach. It would be impossible for all of them to gather at one time in a laboratory to witness the experiments we perform, but now television has brought the science laboratory right into their homes where theories can be demonstrated as well as explained. Only television offers such an opportunity for learning to so many people."

Dr. Miller, a graduate of the University of California, taught zoology, oceanography and marine biology at the University of Washington, before coming here in 1938.

Holland Celebrates 45-Mile Waterway

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands, May 21. (AP) Queen Juliana today opened the 45-mile long Amsterdam-Rhine Canal which gives the Rhine a new mouth and speeds western European shipping to the North Sea. With the queen at the helm, the royal yacht Piet Hein broke the ceremonial ribbon to enter the vast inland locks at Tiel.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

Eisenhower Speech to Get Full Radio-TV Coverage

By KING CHARLES

Arrangements are being completed to give complete coverage both by radio and TV to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's return home and firs' public address on June 4.

The welcome and speech will be in the general's home town, Abilene, Kan., and radio and TV crews already are setting up special equipment for the affair.

Schedules now call for the television stations to carry the speech at 4:30 p. m. with radio carrying it at the same time and repeating at 7.

It is probable that it will be repeated on TV that night.

ON RADIO TONIGHT

Film star Ann Blyth is cast in the role of a young bride whose husband is recalled by the Navy and killed overseas in the drama, "World Without End," which is heard on KHJ at 7. A stranger visits the widow and gives her new courage.

Luis Van Rooten, veteran actor, will be featured in the prize-winning play, "Old Hundred," on the Dr. Christian show on KNX at 8:30. Jean Hersholt, star of the Dr. Christian series, presented Robert Downing, author, with $2000 for writing this play.

The plains around Holbrook, Ariz., echo the sounds of six-guns as the Cisco Kid runs off the town's desperadoes on KHJ at 7:30.

Judy Garland is guest star on the Bing Crosby show on KNX at 6:30, the first of three appearances. This will mark Judy's first radio appearance in a year. She will sing many of her old favorites and will join Bing in some popular tunes.

When bandits rob a payroll train and a sheriff is falsely accused of being a companion in the crime, Wild Bill Hickok goes into action on KHJ at 5:30.

A charming but fake Viennese psychiatrist upsets the routine around the campus of Ivy College and Ronald Colman and his wife unmask him on "Halls of Ivy" on KFI at 7.

Forest Fire Peril Increased by Rain

LOS ANGELES, May 21. (AP) Southern California's forest fire season will be shorter than usual this year, but the hazards will be greater.

Fire detection and suppression crews are usually on the job by this time. But average winter and spring rains have kept the hills moist and green, making it possible to delay the assignments. Fire danger won't become critical for a month or so.

Oddly, it is the abundance of rain that will increase the hazards this year. The moisture has caused lush growths of grass and weeds in areas that have formerly been bare—natural fire breaks.

State Forester Dewitt Nelson estimates five million acres of state-owned land which previously had no cover is now supporting growth.
