

TIP OF THE MORNING: Friends of Fibber McGee and Molly say the team plans to retire from radio at the end of the current season, but might be persuaded to stay on the air one more year—no television, though.

BEFORE the curtain went up on "Good Night, Ladies" at the Capitol theater Tuesday night, one wondered why the program carried the name of neither the producer nor the director.

After the curtain came down at the end of Act One, the reason was obvious, and it got more obvious as the "farce comedy" (and I quote) went on and on.

Based on a play by Avery Hopwood produced some 30 years ago during the heyday of bedroom comedies, "Good Night, Ladies" became in the new version a somewhat tedious, overly sexy, and obviously contrived piece of luck theater. In some spots, it was worse than most burlesque blackouts; in others, it was just too, too reminiscent of other shows. In fact, some of the lines sounded exactly like gags heard in other plays.

In sum, it was burlesque without a chorus and with a mild imitation of Gypsy Rose Lee.

The story—really hilarious in its original form—told of a shy professor loved by an equally shy student. He was taken to an artists' ball by a couple of friends with the idea of curing him of his phobia about female flesh. The ball was raided and the men landed in a Turkish bath establishment for women, inhabited for the time by the shy co-ed, the friends' wives, the mother-in-law of one of the friends, a burlesque queen, etc.

From then on, the complications piled upon each other, with the usual incredibility and happy solution.

As for the cast, it had two good actors—Rolf Forsberg as the professor and Patricia Garber as the girl.

The others were fairly satisfactory. Maybe, though, the false exuberance and the phony excitement were due more to the director than to the actors. If so, let credit go where credit is due.

FOR DANCING: Jimmy Featherstone and his orchestra, now playing a two-week engagement at the Empire room of Milwaukee's Hotel Schroeder, will be at Riverview ballroom, Sauk City, Saturday night, Feb. 9.

DISC OF THE DAY: "Tati-Tati," recorded by Columbia Symphony orchestra under Werner Janssen (Columbia) . . . The tune we know as "Chopsticks" is almost universal. Our version is probably Scotch, but the Russians liked it, and several woe variations on it. Theirs and new ones by Janssen are on this 12-inch LP. The latter have the lighter touch, but all are well played and good listening.

Reich Hits France Over Saar Dispute

BONN, Germany (U.P.)—West Germany Tuesday accused France of attempting to transform the disputed, coal-rich Saar basin into a separate state.

The Bonn government warned, angrily, that such an attempt will prejudice an ultimate Franco-German peace treaty.

The charges were aired at a press conference Walter Hallstein, Germany's secretary of state for foreign affairs, after an emergency session of the cabinet, called to discuss the sudden flare-up of German anger over the Saar issue.

A major holdup in plans for a European army, including 12 German divisions, threatens to result from the Saar dispute.

Rescue of Dog Blamed for Blaze That Claimed 17

MINNEAPOLIS (UP)—A man who saved his dog from a tenement house fire may have unintentionally fanned the blaze into a holocaust that took 17 lives, a fire investigator said Tuesday.

The 17 trapped in the fire Monday included 11 children. Firemen who dug through the ice-crusted ruins all night and Tuesday had recovered 14 bodies.

Fire Investigator Arthur Thompson said that the unwitting act of Hellmuth Schoenfeldt, 44, in saving his dog may have spread the fire through the dilapidated three-story structure.

Thompson said Schoenfeldt, who occupied a store at the rear of the building, was awakened about 4 a. m. Monday when his dog, "Lady," lapped his face.

He said Schoenfeldt kicked one door open and escaped.

Once outside, Schoenfeldt discovered the dog was still inside, whimpering and scratching at a second door. He then kicked open the second door to let the dog escape.

"When he kicked the second door in, a fresh blast of oxygen hit the fire and you might as well have thrown gasoline on the flames," Thompson said.

4 Firemen Overcome at Milwaukee Blaze

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Four firemen were overcome by smoke Tuesday while battling a blaze in a one-story brick building in near-zero temperatures.

The fire spread through the structure housing the Schaefer Picture Framing Co., gutting the interior.

The firemen were taken to Emergency hospital where they were reported in good condition after treatment.
