Gill Garage Acquires Hudson Agency Here

The Gill Garage, Inc., 13 S. Webster st., has acquired the Hudson automobile agency in Madison and will begin operation about Apr. 15. Chester L. Gill, president and general manager, said Monday night.

Parking facilities will be cut from 250 to about 200 cars to accomodate the new agency, but the garage will still handle regular customers and provide transient parking on a "limited scale" Gill said.

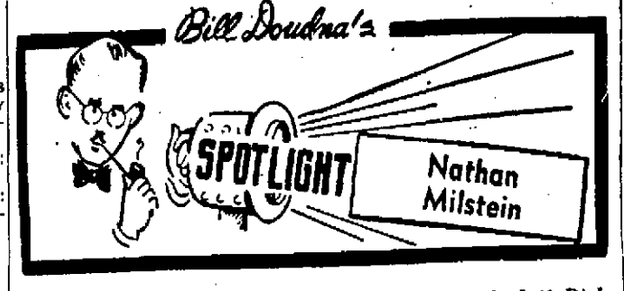

The two police ambulances will be housed in the police garage across the street since Gill's will be closed at 1 a.m. each day.

FOR THE fourth time, Violinist Nathan Milstein won the ringing applause of a Madison audience Tuesday night. He played in the Wisconsin Union theater, his first appearance in that auditorium. Milstein had played in 1935 and 1936 in Great hall of the Memorial Union and in 1941 at the First Congregational church.

Until he became accustomed to the acoustics of the theater, Milstein didn't raise the customary sparks from his audience. But with Prokofieff's "Sonata in D Major," third work on the program, he caught fire, and so did the listeners.

After that prodigious piece of playing, the rest of the concert was a bit anticlimactic, even the well-loved "Symphonie Espagnole" of Lalo with its acrobatic finale.

Milstein's exceptional technical qualifications were on view from the start of the program with the vivid Vitali "Chaconne" and Bach's "Partita in E. Major," which he played in strict tempo for dancing, despite the temptation to linger over one of the lovely minuets.

The Prokofieff sonata was the most intriguing piece of the evening, and Artur Balsam did a masterful job with the piano part. Between them, they gave an exhilarating performance of the work with its restless opening movement, its provocatively repetitious presto, its blend of the romantic and impressionist in the andante, and its gay, dancing last movement, erupting into bright musical fires.

Also on the program were the somewhat lush "From My Homeland" by Smetana and the tricky "Affetuoso" by Pizzetti. Encores were the "Russian Maiden's Song" by Stravinsky and Ries' "Perpetual Motion."

Milstein will repeat the program at 8 tonight in the same theater.

NO. 2,000,000: Mrs. William Morrissey, 111 Virginia terrace, Tuesday night became the 2,000,000th person to attend an event in the Wisconsin Union theater. A committee headed by Mrs. Charles Anderson, Stoughton, and Don Olson, Racine, kept careful count of concert-goers and greeted her as she entered. Mrs. Anderson is chairman of the Wisconsin Union music committee and Olson is chairman of the Wisconsin Union theater committee.

The theater opened in October, 1939.
