JOHN CROSBY'S COLUMN

TV Christmas Operatic Venture Proves a Hit

By JOHN CROSBY

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The first opera ever written for television, Gian-Carlo Menotti's "Amahl and and the Night Visitors," is one of the most basic of Christmas Eve stories, the story of a miracle of faith and of hope and of charity—all three of the most elemental Christian virtues. Mr. Menotti, as a matter of fact, was gravely concerned about it, feeling that he hadn't any new ideas.

He needn't have worried. Menotti simply can't do anything badly and, while "Amahl and the Night Visitors" is hardly his best work, it was a deeply moving and extraordinarily powerful piece of musical drama. Menotti's great virtue, one that has shown up in "The Consul" and "The Medium" and all his work, is a simplicity and integrity of purpose which leads him straight to the heart of the matter; he deals in the fundamental emotions, fundamental human needs, and he writes about them with a terrifying directness.

STORY OF MIRACLE

"Amahl and the Night Visitors" is, briefly, the tale of a crippled boy who sees the Star of Bethlehem and hobbles home to tell his mother about the wonder he has seen. "A star—this long. Well, maybe only this long." She's much too obsessed with their poverty—there's not a bite to eat nor a stick of wood in their hut—to pay much heed. Presently, the three Kings visit the hut and mother and son learn of the birth of the Saviour. They have no gifts to offer the newborn Christ except the boy's crutches. He offers these and suddenly, the miracle, he can walk.

It's the sort of story that could have been drenched in sentimentality, and Menotti, because he is unabashed by the outer trappings of sentiment, because he writes directly about mother love, about poverty, about crutches, about miracles, somehow purifies them and transforms them into genuine and profound emotion. This is a very great gift indeed, the quality of candor, and one which Menotti, almost alone, seems to possess these days.

SUBTLE DRAMATICS

But Menotti, of course, is much more than candid. He is enormously skilled and subtle a dramatist as well as a magnificent composer and the two arts, music and drama, go hand in hand with him. He can hardly write a line of music which doesn't seem exactly suited to the particular moment of the drama, inflaming the mind and the heart simultaneously and intensifying the dramatic effect to an almost unbearable degree.

The opera opened, quietly and simply, with the crippled boy, played by 12-year-old Chet Allen, whose singing is a miracle of sweetness—playing his pipe in the market place, all alone, a scene of wondrous freshness like the bouquet of a newly opened wine. There were many other wonderful scenes. Three times the boy peeps out the door at the newly arrived Kings. "Mother, Mother, some see what I see!" Three times his mother refused to believe anyone was there, charging the atmosphere with a rising and terrible excitement.

HEART EXPOSED

Then there was the procession of the kings into the hut, reflected like silver balls in the shining eyes of the boy. They were very human Kings, even a little stupid, but very kindly. "Have you royal blood?" whispered the boy. "Yes." "Can I see it?" "It's no different from yours." "What good is it?" Has ever a small boy's heart and mind been so tenderly exposed?

Menotti drew his inspiration from the 15th century Flemish painting, "The Adoration of the Magi," by Bosch, and much of the staging and especially the lighting which was altogether superb captured the quality of Flemish art—its composition, its opulence, its rather earthy reverence.

MUSICAL MASTERPIECE

Menotti's music, so powerful in "The Consul," was marked here, I thought, by a rare melodic sweetness completely in harmony with the breathless sweetness of the tale he unfolded. Besides the boy, a low bow is due also to Rosemary Kuhlmann for her performance and singing as the mother, to Samuel Chotzinoff, who produced it, to NBC, who commissioned it, and who, I hope, will revive it many times.

As for Mr. Menotti, I can think of no higher praise than to say that everyone who saw it was a little better as a person and as a Christian than he was an hour earlier.

Stanford Fans Can Forget; Take Golf Lessons on TV

By JAMES ABBE

Here we are coasting into 1952. Christmas and New Year festivities are a thing of the past. Pleasant memories of radioed and telecast parades, fun and football. . . Unhappy memories of sudden death in planes and autos. Back we come to close rank, and business as usual, in a new year holding out hopes as well as threats.

"But first" (as we say in radio) a few backward glances over our shoulders. Watching the televised Rose Bowl game, we saw marvelous midwinter California sunshine smugly aware that the snowbound and storm ravaged East was also looking on.

Any gloating on our part, however, about the superiority of our weather, was offset by the obvious superiority of their football team.

I leave it to The Tribune sports department to diagnose Stanford's trouble and stick to my TV knitting by remarking that while NBC's brand new mobile walky-pushy-look-no-wires TV camera, may have greatly facilitated the work of their cameramen, the camera work didn't look any better on my screen than before. No worse, but no better. The same goes for the earlier-in-the-day TV coverage of the Pasadena Tournament of Roses.

THIS BOWL COVERAGE

TV coverage was notable in that it was the first time the Pasadena job had been televised coast to coast.

Looking at that fantastic array of flower-fashioned floats, not to mention the float queens, their lovely attendants and handmaidens, one could imagine how beautiful it would have been on our screens, in natural color. Actually we can still find out how it would have looked in color, by seeing the same parade soon, in Oakland or San Francisco, on Technicolor newsreel.

TV GOLF LESSONS

In case Stanford players, rooters and alumni want to get their minds off football, they might tune in on KPIX tonight at 10:15 and see "Golf Made Easy." Chuck Sprawkins, bay area pro, will demonstrate how ridiculously easy it is to play golf. That's what my amateur champion billiard playing father used to say about billiards.

Father used to say that billiards was the easiest known game. All you have to do is to make one ball hit two others. Let's check up on Chuck tonight as he shows us how to make golf easy. As a onetime golfer I can tell you what makes golf so easy. All you have to do is keep hitting the ball until it drops into a cup.

If you want to find out how easy it is for newspapers to run down criminals, letting the regular law enforcement people have the benefit (free) of a veritable Sherlock Holmes like Steve Wilson, then tune in on KCBS tonight at 9.

Tonight's "Big Town" program is likely to make some of us employees of a metropolitan paper shudder to think that even one of our fictional colleagues might have been involved in crime. When Editor Steve goes after some murderous counterfeiters tonight, we are tipped off that search for the key man DOES lead right to the fictional newspaper itself. Wow!

SCRIPT CONTEST

There's money to be made in writing scripts for "Big Town" and other whodunits. Now in its 15th year, the Dr. Christian Show (tonight at 8:30 over KCBS) is said to be the only radio program on which its dramatizations are written by the audience. Announcing its latest prize contest, the show offers $2000 for the best script submitted for the program, $500 each for the three next best, and from $250 to $350 for all others accepted for use on the program.

This columnist is passing on to you the following information; a folder of rules for the Dr. Christian contest may be obtained by writing to "Dr. Christian Award, 17 State St., New York 4, N.Y."

RADIO

Show Time

By BOB FRANKLIN

Although television is relatively new, it has been around long enough to establish certain programs as "old friends" to viewers.

Tonight one of these programs makes a return to local screens—and I can't think of a more pleasant reunion. At 7 p.m. PULITZER PRIZE PLAYHOUSE lights up the set via KGO-TV with a continuation of the series which made such a smash hit last year. The initial performance will be Thornton Wilder's prize-winning comedy, "The Skin Of Our Teeth." The cast is right out of the top drawer and features Thomas Mitchell, Nina Foch, Peggy Wood and Mildred Natwick—a combination which certainly can do justice to Mr. Wilder's 1943 Pulitzer Prize winner.

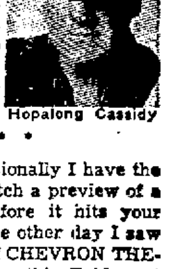

If you're a lover of good drama settle down to watch PULITZER PRIZE PLAYHOUSE tonight followed at 8 by another edition of FOREIGN INTRIGUE. This is the program which is filmed in Europe right smack in the middle of the intrigue which it depicts.

New year—new shows, seems to be the pattern. Here's a couple that are gracing KGO-radio's log for '52. THE JOHN CONTE SHOW with the baritone notes of John Conte warms the morning kilocycles at 7:55 a.m. each weekday and TOM CORBETT-SPACE CADET adds radio to his tv duties in the 5 p.m. spot each Tuesday and Thursday on KGO.

Hopalong Cassidy is now seen on channel 7 beginning tomorrow night at 6:30. No need to go into detail about Hoppy. He's perhaps the best loved gent on tv—a record he has held with the kiddos for several years. If you want to keep peace in the household don't forget to set the dial on 7 tomorrow night at 6:30 — that's Hoppy's range from now on.

Preview: Occasionally I have the opportunity to catch a preview of a new tv show before it hits your home screens. The other day I saw the first edition of CHEVRON THEATRE which bows this Friday at 8:30 p.m. on KGO-TV. I'm sure you will recognize many of the faces in this series since Chevron is filming them in Hollywood especially for tv. I'll have more about the first show, "Portrait of Toby," in my Friday column, but I wanted to mention it now so you will be on the lookout for it. (1-2-52)
