

My Million Dollar Smile

By W. Lee O'Daniel

Come listen, folks, to what I say.
I've said goodbye to gloomy days.
I've got myself back on the track,
And from here on out, I'm coming back.
Sob stuff on me is now taboo.
I've joined America's smiling crew.
I've tossed my troubles in the old trash pile,
And I'm wearing my million dollar smile.

I've got that million dollar smile.
It's the latest thing in style.
It's in my walk, and it's in my talk,
And it's with me all the while.
I've said, "Skiddoo" to hard-time blue,
And from here on out, I'm smiling through.
I'm a happy child, and I'm running wild,
With my million dollar smile.

I've sung a sad song many a time
Since nineteen-hundred-and-twenty-nine,
And every time I sang that song,
My furs got short and my face got long.
But since I've changed, I'm winning the race,
With a song in my heart and a smile on my face,
And now I've learned that life's worthwhile,
'Cause I'm wearing my million dollar smile.

I've got that million dollar smile.
It's the latest thing in style.
It's in my walk, and it's in my talk,
And it's with me all the while.
I've said, "Skiddoo" to hard-time blue,
And from here on out, I'm smiling through.
I'm a happy child, and I'm running wild,
With my million dollar smile.
