

Space Patrol

was a highly successful franchise, packaged as a retro, juvenile serial featuring the adventures of the steely-jawed redoubtable Commander Buzz Corry and his wet-behind-the-ears sidekick Cadet Happy as they combat various 30th-century baddies across the Solar System and beyond. Originally a television series, the same actors reprised their roles for the radio version, which ran concurrently with the TV show from the fall of 1950 to the spring of 1955. [It is unclear when the radio series began, possibly 1952?].

The outfits and sets on the TV show were vintage cheese-ball Sci-Fi, at best laughable by even fifties' standards; however, freed of the sorry visuals, the radio incarnation comes across much better, even managing to introduce some rather sophisticated scientific concepts such as black holes, inertia-based space flight, anti-matter, and engineered space habitats. Perhaps the most enjoyable aspect of this series are the hilarious commercials for Chex cereal and various Space Patrol toys.

All shows are in standard half-hour format and were written by Lou Huston. At least 114 episodes, out of perhaps 129, are still in circulation.

Since this was a serial, I have included a rough broadcast log. And since many of the episodes have had the credits and title cropped, making identification difficult, I have included an Index to First Lines.

Currently this archive contains 29 of 114 plotlines

Treasure of Mount Rolcab, The

Year: 1954
Duration: 30 min
Story by: Lou Huston

Opening: "Commander Corry and Cadet Happy have landed their spaceship in a clearing at the base of Mount Rolcab on the planet Venus. Leisurely they stroll up a rough path overhung with lush Venus vegetation, toward a crude cabin built against the side of the mountain. In the trees above them, large squirrels chatter and scold, while gaily-plumed birds dart about like streaks of flame among the branches." --- the narrator

Trial by Terror

Year: 1954

Duration: 30 min

Story by: Lou Huston

Opening: "Commander Corry and Cadet Happy are maintaining an all-night vigil in Room 2-7 of the Space Patrol Security Lab. Room 2-7 houses an array of electronics equipment, known officially as the Terra Internal Protective Alarm Coordinator, usually referred to as the Crime Trap. The complex device is connected to hundreds of key points on the man-made planet Terra—banks, government offices, and laboratories. Its sensitive detection instruments are ready to report any attempt at forced entry, unusual movement or outbreak of fire at any of these crucial locations. For hours now, the row of viewscope screens have remained dark. Unbroken rows of small green lights indicate the system is in operation in all circuits. Bored by the uneventful hours of waiting, Happy stands up and stretches." --- the narrator

Trouble Aboard the Supernova

Year: 1953

Duration: 30 min

Story by: Lou Huston

A reformed hustler becomes the fall guy for an executive who employs him as a courier, then hires a thug to steal the valuable package entrusted to him aboard the spaceliner Supernova.

Opening: "One of the most important industrial concerns in the United Planets is Solar Technic. It's research staff have been responsible for hundreds of discoveries in many fields of industry, and their achievements have increased the comfort and security of people on all the planets. Solar Technic is noted for its generosity in making its processes available not only to the government, but to other companies as well. Our story opens in the office of Clark Ruckler, the assistant coordinator of Solar Technic on the man-made planet Terra. Ruckler is talking to one of his young field men, Mark Jason." --- the narrator

Valley of Dread, The

Year: 1953

Duration: 30 min

Story by: Lou Huston

Opening: "Far out, beyond the orbit of Pluto, a giant Space Patrol construction ship hovers in space. Scores of engineers and skilled workmen in spacesuits swarm over a nearby object that appears to be meteor. As they work with grim haste, a Space Patrol officer inside the construction ship simply watches a bank of viewscope screens, focused in the direction of planet X, remote planetary stronghold of the ruthless Prince Baccarratti. At this moment, Commander Corry and Cadet Happy are aboard the Terra V, rushing for the construction ship." --- the narrator lifted from Jerry Haendiges site. According to Mr Haendiges "Episode numbers jump from 52 to 105. There is no gap in story continuity. I suspect numbering system was changed to match previous series, but I'm not sure. There are only 149 episodes not 181." I have renumbered the series without the gap and I have changed the titles so they are consistent with this site. Also, it looks like there were 129 episodes, not 149. However, the purpose here is not to present you with a definitive radio log, but to give you some idea of the order in which the episodes were broadcast. After all, this was a serial, not an anthology; sometimes the order in which you listen matters.

Broadcast Log
